

Changes to IFRS 7 and the Impact of Credit Risk on Financial Instruments
A Seminar in conjunction with Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu

The Global Financial Crisis has highlighted how a changed credit risk environment can severely impact the fair value of financial assets and liabilities, including derivatives. To deal with this reality, FAS 157 was adopted in the U.S. and in some instances has led to a significant restatement of accounts. Under International Accounting Standards, in November 2008 the IASB Expert Valuation Guidance also reiterated the importance of including a credit adjustment in the fair value of financial instruments including derivatives.

In March 2009, the amendments to AASB 7 were approved and they are expected to apply to all Australian reporting entities for the year commencing 30th June 2009.

Visual Risk is hosting a series of seminars throughout Australia to address the specific changes under IFRS 7 as well as the latest guidance on incorporation of credit in fair values. These seminars will feature John Kidd, a Partner at Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu who is a leading specialist in financial instruments. John heads a specialist group of twenty professionals dedicated to assisting companies with their IAS 39 issues. John will discuss the introduction of credit risk into the IFRS reporting framework and its impact on the valuation of financial instruments, including derivatives and the potential flow on impact with respect to IAS 39 hedge accounting.
